DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

The information disclosure statement filed on 1/23/04 has been placed in the application file and the information referred to therein has been considered as to the merits.

Drawings

The drawings received on 1/23/04 are acceptable for examination purposes.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 9 recites the limitation "the other" in line 3. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1-3, 5-15, 17, 18-20 & 22-24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by US Patent 6,447,941 (Tomimatsu).

Tomimatsu teaches a fuel cell stack with an anode, cathode and electrolyte in between. The catalyst phase forms a thin layer adjacent to the electrolyte compartment and the anode is heated by the inherent electrochemical reaction of a fuel cell. A liquid fuel holding portion is disposed on the anode, which is supplied with fuel by capillary action (Abstract; Fig. 1; 7:30-8:5). The capillary material is a porous material of non-woven fabric and has a porosity of 20-90% and a pore size of 0.01 – 120 microns (8:54-60; 9:10-30). The separator has oxidant and fuel supplying grooves (9:60-10:5).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 4, 16, 21 & 25-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent 6,447,941 (Tomimatsu) in view of US Patent 7,045,234 (Mardilovich).

The teachings of Tomimatsu as discussed above are incorporated herein.

Tomimatsu is silent to the anode receiving heat from a heater.

Art Unit: 1745

Mardilovich teaches heater for integration with fuel cell anodes. The integrated heater also has temperature sensors and a control system for monitoring and regulating the fuel temperature (Abstract; 2:5-25). The motivation to use the integrated heater is to allow the monitoring and control of the fuel cell temperature improving the efficiency of the fuel cell operation (6:2-25).

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the claimed invention was made to modify the fuel cell of Tomimatsu with the integrated anode heater of Mardilovich to improve efficiency of the fuel cell by allowing accurate control of the fuel cell temperature.
